

Global Perspectives on Adolescent Health and Economic Strengthening Conference: Lessons from Sub-Saharan Africa

Name, credentials, affiliation	Bio
Susannah Allison, PhD Program Officer, Infant, Child, & Adolescent Research Programs, Division of AIDS Research, NIMH, NIH Washington DC, USA Email: allisonsu@mail.nih.gov	Susannah Allison is a Program Officer at the National Institute of Mental Health within the Division of AIDS Research. The program she oversees supports research focused on innovative strategies to prevent HIV infection among infants, children and adolescents, as well as research on the neurobehavioral and psychosocial impact of HIV Infection among youth. Dr. Susannah holds a PhD in Clinical Child Psychology with an emphasis in child health psychology from George Washington University.
Jeannie Annan, PhD Director of Research & Evaluation, International Rescue Committee New York, NY, USA Email: jeannie.annan@theirc.com	Jeannie Annan is the Director of Research and Evaluation at the International Rescue Committee (IRC). Her research focuses on evaluating prevention and response programs for women affected by violence, and children and youth in armed conflict. Her work also explores the psychosocial effects of war violence and related protective factors. She has worked for non-governmental education and child protection programs in Kosovo, northern Uganda and South Sudan. Dr. Annan holds a PhD in Psychology with a minor in African studies from Indiana University, Bloomington.
Tonbofa Ashimi Partner, Edward Ekiyor & Co., Nigeria Bayelsa, Nigeria Email: tonbofa@edwardekiyorgroup.com	Tonbofa Eva Ashimi is a Managing Partner of the Nigerian Law Firm of Edward Ekiyor & Co. with offices in Lagos and Bayelsa States of Nigeria. She was the Director-General of Due Process and E-Governance Bureau of the Bayelsa State Government (2011-2012) and the Special Adviser to the Bayelsa State Government of Trade from (2009-2012). She was the Co-ordinator of the Bayelsa State Government Child Development Account Pilot Project -a Bayelsa State Government solely sponsored initiative in partnership with Columbia University, World Bank and New America Foundation. Tonbofa received a LL.B from the University of Lagos, Nigeria and has a Masters of Law from Harvard Law School, USA.
Rev. Fr. Joseph Kato Bakulu Assistant Education Secretariat, Catholic Diocese of Masaka, Uganda Email: bakulukaj@yahoo.co.uk	Rev. Fr. Joseph Kato Bakulu is the Assistant Education Secretariat with the Catholic Diocese of Masaka, in Uganda. As Diocesan Education Secretariat, he ensures and maintains sound educational policies, standards, and procedures within the Diocese. Rev. Fr. Kato became involved with the Suubi Projects in Uganda, even housing the first research offices at his Parish, Matale. Since then, he has been the leading community partner, representing the Diocese of Masaka, with Dr. Fred Ssewamala's Suubi Projects, which have since grown into a fully-fledged center the International Center for Child Health and Asset Development (ICHAD).
Alida M. Bouris, PhD Assistant Professor, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration Chicago, IL, USA	Alida M. Bouris is an Assistant Professor in the University of Chicago's School of Social Service Administration. Her primary research area is in the development of family-based interventions to reduce health disparities in HIV/AIDS, sexually transmitted infections, and unplanned pregnancies among African American and Latino young men who have sex with men and Latino adolescents

Email: abouris@uchicago.edu	and young adults. Professor Bouris received her PhD, MPhil, and MSW from the Columbia University School of Social Work and her BA in Women's Studies from the University of California at Berkeley.
Mark Canavera, MA, MPP Associate Director, Child Protection in Crisis Learning Network; Columbia University Mailman School of Public Health New York, NY, USA Email: mc3718@columbia.edu	Mark Canavera is the Associate Director of the Child Protection in Crisis (CPC) Learning Network. He is a humanitarian aid and development worker who focuses on child protection in West Africa. He has worked on former child soldier reintegration in northern Uganda, small arms control in Senegal, girls' education promotion in Burkina Faso, and child welfare system reform in Côte d'Ivoire, Niger, Benin, and Cameroon. He holds Masters Degrees in Peace Studies from Notre Dame and Public Policy from Harvard.
Josh Chaffin, MA Senior Programme Officer, Livelihoods and Child Protection, Women's Refugee Commission, New York, NY, USA Email: joshuac@wrcommission.org	Josh Chaffin leads the Global Technical Group on Economic Strengthening and Child Protection, a sub-network of the Columbia University-led, Care and Protection of Children in Crisis Learning Network. Chaffin has served as editor of two national Poverty Reduction Strategy Papers as well as the national Human Development Report for the Republic of Azerbaijan. In 2006-7, he managed a USAID-funded reintegration program for children and women affected by the fighting forces in Liberia. He holds a Masters Degree in International Affairs from Columbia University.
Robert J. Chaskin, PhD Associate Professor, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration; Chicago, IL, USA Email: rjc3@uchicago.edu	Robert J. Chaskin is an Associate Professor and the Deputy Dean for Strategic Initiatives at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration. His research interests include community organizing and development, community social organization, comprehensive community initiatives, youth development, associations and nonprofits, philanthropy and social change, knowledge utilization and evaluation, and cross-national research. Professor Chaskin received his AM in Anthropology and PhD in Sociology from the University of Chicago.
Lucie Cluver, PhD Oxford University Lecturer, Department of Social Policy & Intervention; University of Cape Town, Department of Psychiatry and Mental Health Email: lucie.cluver@spi.ox.ac.uk	Lucie Cluver is an Associate Professor in the Department of Social Policy and Intervention, Oxford University, and an Honorary Lecturer in Psychiatry and Mental Health at the University of Cape Town. She works closely with the South African government, USAID-PEPFAR, UNICEF, WHO, and Save the Children, to provide research evidence that can improve the lives of children affected by HIV/AIDS in Sub-Saharan Africa. Her recent projects include the Young Carers and Orphan Resilience Studies for AIDS-affected children in South Africa. Dr. Cluver holds a PhD in Child Psychiatry and a Masters Degree in Social Policy from Oxford University, and a MSW from Cambridge University.
Jami Curley, PhD Associate Professor of Social Work & Director of Field Education	Dr. Curley is an Associate Professor of Social Work at St. Louis University. She teaches social policy and sustainable development. Dr. Curley's primary academic interests are in the social economic development of low-income families and children through asset-based strategies domestically

Saint Louis University College for Public Health & Social Justice, St. Louis, MO, USA Email: curleyjc@slu.edu	and internationally. Her research includes studies on matched savings accounts for low-income families in the United States and matched savings accounts for HIV/AIDs-orphans in Uganda. Dr, Curley holds a MSW and PhD in Social Work from Washington University in St. Louis.
Deborah Gorman-Smith, PhD Professor, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration Chicago, IL, USA Email: debg@uchicago.edu	Deborah Gorman-Smith is a Professor at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration. She is the Principal Investigator and Director of the Chicago Center for Youth Violence Prevention, one of 6 national Academic Centers of Excellence funded by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Her program of research, grounded in a public health perspective, is focused on advancing knowledge about development, risk, and prevention of aggression and violence, with specific focus on minority youth living in poor urban settings Professor Gorman-Smith received her PhD in Clinical-Developmental Psychology at the University of Illinois at Chicago.
Neil B. Guterman, PhD Dean, School of Social Service Administration University of Chicago, Chicago, IL USA Email: nguterman@uchicago.edu	Neil B. Guterman is Dean, the Mose and Sylvia Firestone Professor, and the Director of the Beatrice Cummings Mayer Program in Violence Prevention in the School of Social Service Administration. His scholarly interests are concerned with services targeting children and violence. He holds special interest in child abuse and neglect prevention, as well as children's exposure to violence outside the home. Dean Guterman holds a PhD in Social Work and Psychology from the University of Michigan, as well as an MSW in Clinical Practice from the University of Michigan.
Martin Hayes Senior Child Protection Technical Advisor at Displaced Children and Orphans Fund, USAID Washington, DC Email: mhayes@usaid.gov	Martin Hayes is Senior Child Protection Technical Advisor for USAID's Displaced Children and Orphans Fund. Hayes has 20 years of professional experience in the field of child protection working with agencies such as the United Nations Children's Fund, the International Rescue Committee, Save the Children and ChildFund International. He worked for several years in Africa and Central Asia managing and providing technical support for child protection programs and seven years as a Senior Technical Advisor at a headquarters level.
Julia R. Henly, PhD Associate Professor, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration Chicago, IL, USA Email: jhenly@uchicago.edu	Julia R. Henly is an Associate Professor in the School of Social Service Administration. Her research focuses on the intersection of family poverty, low-wage employment, and public policy, especially child care and family policy. She is interested in families' economic and caregiving strategies, with particular attention to how work conditions, public policies, and social networks operate to support and complicate poverty management and economic mobility. Professor Henly received her PhD in Social Work and Social Psychology and MSW in Policy and Planning from the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor.

Leyla Ismayilova, PhD Assistant Professor, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration Chicago, IL, USA Email: leyla@uchicago.edu	Leyla Ismayilova is an Assistant Professor at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration. Professor Ismayilova specializes in the development and adaptation of health promotion and family-based interventions in the international context and has been involved in international research projects in sub-Saharan Africa, the Middle East, and the former Soviet Union. Her research agenda focuses on developing culturally congruent interventions to improve mental health functioning and reduce risk behaviors (sexual risk behaviors and substance use) among at-risk children and youth. She received her PhD in Social Work and a MSW from the Columbia University School of Social Work.
Sarah Lyn Jones, MA Student, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration, Chicago, IL USA Email: slynjones@uchicago.edu	Sarah Lyn Jones is a graduate student at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration. Her research interests focus on International social welfare and violence prevention. In the summer of 2013, Sarah traveled to Addis Ababa to conduct a needs assessment of orphaned youth transitioning out of institutional care, and is now working with Loyola University to develop intervention strategies based on her findings. Sarah is also pursuing her Masters of Divinity at McCormick Theological Seminary and hopes to work with faith-based organizations to design and implement responsive, sustainable programs for OVC welfare in developing nations.
Njeri Kagotho, PhD Assistant Professor of Social Work, Adelphi University, New York, NY USA Email: nkagotho@adelphi.edu	Njeri Kagotho is an Assistant Professor at Adelphi University in New York. Her research is deeply influenced by her international practice and explores the incontestable link between a family's wealth holdings and the physical and mental well-being of its members. Dr. Kagotho's research has focused on: (a) the impact of chronic illness on wealth creation and wealth preservation, (b) the mechanisms through which wealth moderates health behaviors, and (c) the effect of HIV and AIDS on the intergenerational transmission of human capital. Dr. Kagotho holds a PhD in Social Work and a MSW from Washington University in St. Louis.
Leyla Karimli, PhD Postdoctoral Fellow, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration; Research Associate, New York University McSilver Institute for Poverty Policy and Research, Research Associate, ICHAD, New York, NY USA Email: lkarimli@uchicago.edu	Leyla Karimli is a Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration, and a Research Associate with the McSilver Institute for Poverty Policy and Research at New York University, and the International Center for Child Health & Asset Development. Her specific areas of focus are youth poverty and social experiments on the financial behavior of youth, their asset accumulation, and their social networks and social capital. Karimli has more than seven years of research experience, specializing in policy research and analyses of participatory poverty reduction strategies, savings behavior of youths in poor households, and asset accumulation in Child Development Accounts in sub-Saharan Africa. She received her PhD in Social Work from Columbia University and a MA in Political Science from Kansas State University.
Apollo Kivumbi, MBChB	Dr. Apollo Kivumbi is the Study Coordinator for the Suubi+Adherence Study Coordinator at the

Study Coordinator, Suubi+Adherence, International Center for Child Health & Asset Development Masaka Office, Uganda Email: apoku@live.com	International Center for Child Health and Asset Development field office in Masaka, Uganda. He holds a Bachelors degree in Human Medicine and a Bachelors degree in Human Surgery from Makerere University Medical School, Kampala Uganda.
Jeanne C. Marsh, PhD George Herbert Jones Distinguished Service Professor in the School of Social Service Administration; Director of the Center for Health Administration Studies (CHAS) at the University of Chicago Chicago, IL , USA Email: jmarsh@uchicago.edu	Jeanne C. Marsh is the George Herbert Jones Distinguished Service Professor in the School of Social Service Administration and the Director of the Center for Health Administration Studies (CHAS) at the University of Chicago. Her fields of special interest include services for women and families, intersection of multiple service systems, the relation of service delivery to treatment outcome, and knowledge utilization in practice and program decision making. She is currently the Principal Investigator on a NIDA-funded study of gender differences in the impact of substance abuse treatment services. Professor Marsh received her PhD in Social Work and Psychology and a MSW from the University of Michigan.
Sanyukta Mathur, PhD Associate Research Scientist of Population and Family Health, Columbia University Mailman School of Public Health New York, NY USA Email: sm2892@columbia.edu	Sanyukta Mathur is an Associate Research Scientist at the Mailman School of Public Health at Columbia University in New York. Her research interests include adolescent reproductive health, HIV/AIDS, youth livelihoods, and social transitions. Dr. Mathur currently serves and the project director and investigator on two NIH-funded research projects that explore risk factors of HIV incident infections among youth and examine the intersection between reproductive health desires and HIV risk. She received her PhD in Public Health and Sociomedical Sciences from Columbia University and a Masters of Health Science from Johns Hopkins.
Mary McKay, PhD Director, McSilver Institute for Poverty Policy and Research; McSilver Professor of Poverty Studies, New York University Silver School of Social Work New York, NY USA Email: mary.mckay@nyu.edu	Mary McKay is a McSilver Professor of Poverty Studies and Director of the McSilver Institute for Poverty Policy and Research. Her research focuses on the mental health and health prevention needs of inner-city youth and families. Working with colleagues in the field, she developed a substantial body of research findings around engagement practices to improve involvement in family-based HIV prevention programs and mental health services by children, youth, and families in poverty-impacted urban areas. She has significant expertise in services and implementation research methods, as well as 15 years of experience conducting HIV prevention and care-oriented studies. Dr. McKay holds a PhD in Social Work from University of Illinois at Chicago and a MSW from Loyola University of Chicago.
J. Curtis McMillen, PhD Professor, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration Email: cmcmillen@uchicago.edu	J. Curtis McMillen is a Professor at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration. He focuses his work around improving mental health services for children and youth in foster care. These efforts include developing and testing new models of treatment foster care, improving the delivery of psychiatric service to foster care populations, including psychotropic medications, and bringing evidence supported mental health interventions into

	foster care. He is also involved in efforts to study and develop the social service workforce that is charged with monitoring and improving quality. Professor McMillen received his PhD in Social Work from the University of Maryland and MSW from the University of Oklahoma.
Claude Mellins, PhD Professor of Clinical Psychology, Columbia University Medical Center of Psychology, New York State Psychiatric Institute New York, NY USA Email: cam14@columbia.edu	Dr. Mellins is a Clinical Psychologist with research and clinical expertise in psychosocial aspects of HIV disease in families and children. She is currently the Principal Investigator of an NIMH-funded R01 grant on Mental Health and Risk Behavior in HIV+ Youth and Seroreverter, one of the few studies examining psychiatric disorders and sexual and drug risk behavior in perinatally HIV-infected adolescents. She is the Co-Founder and Co-Director of the Special Needs Clinic at New York Presbyterian Hospital (NYPH), a mental health clinic for HIV-affected women, children and families. Dr. Mellins holds a PhD in Clinical Psychology from the University of Southern California.
Abel Mwebembezi, MA Executive Director, Reach the Youth-Uganda; In-Country Implementation Partner, International Center for Child Health & Asset Development Kampala, Uganda Email: ablemwebembez@yahoo.com	Abel Mwebembezi is the Executive Director of Reach the Youth-Uganda, and the In-Country Implementation Partner, ICHAD. . From 1997–2001, he managed a grant of UNFPA supporting over 12 NGOs implementing RH/HIV/AIDS projects, coordinated the Advocacy Project for RH/HIV/AIDS under African Youth Alliance program funded by Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, managed child sponsorship education programs , and coordinated child livelihood projects. Mwebembezi has worked with United Nations Peace Keeping Mission as a Planning Officer at UNAMID, Darfur in the Sudan under the Office of Mission Chief Of Staff. He holds a Masters degree in Population Research from Exeter University in UK.
Eunice Muthengi, PhD Senior Program Officer, Poverty, Gender and Youth, Population Council, Nairobi, Kenya Email: emuthengi@popcouncil.org	Eunice Muthengi is a Senior Program Officer at the Population Council, in the Poverty, Gender and Youth Programs. Her interests include adolescent reproductive health, population and development, and associations between economic empowerment and health. She manages research studies and interventions related to early marriage, and building social, health and economic assets for vulnerable adolescent girls. Dr.Muthengi is currently the Deputy Team Leader for the Adolescent Girls Initiative-Kenya, a six-year program using a randomized control trial design to test packages of interventions for adolescent girls in health, education, wealth creation, and prevention of violence. She holds a PhD in Public Health from UCLA, with a focus on reproductive health and demography.
Kasio Mutuku Manager Product & Sales, Kenya Post Office Savings Bank, Nairobi, Kenya Email: kasiomutuku@postbank.co.ke	Kasio Mutuku, is the Manager of Products and Sales at Kenya Post Office Savings Bank. He is the lead banking representative on the YouthSave Project, and the Impact Assessment and Text-Messaging Studies. The YouthSave Project is the largest economic empowerment program for children and adolescents in East Africa, and it has great potential to influence national policy and programming. Mutuku has been heavily and actively involved in these projects since their inception. He oversees Kenya Postbank branch activities and operations at every branch involved in the stated projects, which numbers over 100 branches spread across the country.

Sylvia Nabakadde Branch Manager, Centenary Rural Development Bank, Kyotera, Uganda Email: sylvia.nabakadde@centenarybank.co.ug	Sylvia Nabakadde is the Branch Manager for Centenary Rural Development Bank in Kyotera, Uganda. We have worked with Bank since 2004. We have an MOU with them. There is a lot they will be able to share with us on the dos and don'ts of structuring savings-led products for OVCs. They have a wealth of knowledge from the financial institution's perspective. WE need those details as researchers and practitioners. For example, how can we make these products sustainable and profitable. We will get these details from the "market" or bank's perspective. And Sylvia will bring that perspective.
Gertrude Nakigozi, MBChB Head of Clinical Services, Rakai Health Sciences Program, Rakai, Uganda Email: gnakigozi@rhsp.org	Dr. Gertrude Nakigozi is the Head of Clinical Services at the Rakai Health Sciences Program, where she oversees provision of HIV care and treatment to HIV-positive adults and children in Rakai District, Uganda. She works as a XXX trainer at the International Center for Child Health and Asset Development. She holds a Bachelors degree in Medicine and Surgery from Makerere University Medical School, and a Master of Public Health from Johns Hopkins University School of Public Health.
Jennifer Nattabi Project Coordinator, Suubi & Bridges Studies, International Center for Child Health & Asset Development, Masaka, Uganda Email: jennifernattabi@yahoo.co.uk	Jennifer Nattabi is the Projects Coordinator at the International Center for Child Health and Asset Development, Uganda field offices.. She has worked with the Suubi Projects in Uganda for the past five years, and is coordinating recent projects including; Suubi-Maka (Hope for families) (2008-2012), and Bridges to the Future (2011-2016). Nattabi received her BA in Education from Makerere University and a Diploma in Education from Kyambogo University in Uganda
Corrinne Ngurukie Regional Technical Advisor, YouthSave Initiative, Save the Children, Nairobi, Kenya Email: cngurukie@savechildren.org	Corrinne Ngurukie is the Africa Regional Technical Advisor for the YouthSave project - a MasterCard Foundation-funded and consortium ran multi-year and multi-country project led by of Save the Children. She joined this project in September 2010 and has been instrumental in the design and execution of the YouthSave program of technical assistance as well as project support to partner financial institutions in Kenya and Ghana. Her areas of expertise are in youth economic development, financial capability, product development, market research, strategic and product marketing, business process re-engineering, corporate branding, and customer service designing.
Moses Njenga Policy Analyst, Private Sector Division, Kenya Institute for Public Policy Research and Analysis, Nairobi, Kenya	Moses Njenga, is a policy analyst with the Kenya Institute for Public Policy Research and Analysis (KIPPRA), is the lead in-country research partner for the YouthSave Project. The YouthSave Project is the largest economic empowerment program for children and adolescents in East Africa, involving a consortium of organizations, including the Center for Social Development, Save the Children, Kenya Post Office Savings Bank, and KIPPRA. Njenga is also serving as lead in-country

Email: njengam@kippra.or.ke	research partner, representing KIPPRRA, on the Impact Assessment and the Text Messaging Study – two studies that branch off of the larger YouthSave Project.
Olufunmilayo I. Olopade, MD, FACP Walter L. Palmer Distinguished Service Professor of Medicine and Human Genetics; Associate Dean, Global Health; Director, Center for Clinical Cancer Genetics, The University of Chicago Medicine Chicago, IL USA Email: folopade@medicine.bsd.uchicago.edu	Dr. Olopade is a Walter L. Palmer Distinguished Service Professor of Medicine and Human Genetics, Associate Dean and Global Health Director at the Center for Clinical Cancer Genetics at the University of Chicago Medicine. She is an expert in cancer risk assessment and individualized treatment for the most aggressive forms of breast cancer, having developed novel management strategies based on an understanding of the altered genes in individual patients. She stresses comprehensive risk reducing strategies and prevention in high-risk populations, as well as earlier detection through advanced imaging technologies. Dr. Olopade graduated from the University of Ibadan Medical School.
Timothy Opobo, MA Program Learning Group Coordinator, Child Fund, Kampala, Uganda Email: topobo@uganda.childfund.org	Timothy Opobo is the Head of Child Protection for ChildFund in Uganda, and the in-country coordinator for the Child Protection in Crisis Learning Network; a global network to systemize and strengthen child protection in crisis settings, and a member of the national steering committee on Justice for Children in Uganda. He has previously worked with the African Network for the Prevention and Protection against Child Abuse and Neglect-ANPPCAN-in both Uganda and Liberia. He holds a Masters Degree in Development Studies from the University College, Dublin, Ireland, and a BA in Social Work and Social Administration from Makerere University, Kampala, Uganda.
Michael Samson, PhD Director of Research, Economic Policy Research Institute, Cape Town, South Africa Email: msamson@epri.org.za	Michael Samson is South Africa’s Economic Policy Research Institute’s (EPRI) Director of Research. He has 25 years’ experience working in social protection, and specializes in designing, implementing, monitoring and evaluating social cash transfer programs. He has recently completed policy design projects for social assistance programs in Malawi, Lesotho, Senegal, Ghana, Rwanda, and Kenya, and is currently working on social protection projects in Bangladesh, Indonesia, Mozambique, Nepal, the Pacific, South Africa, and Uganda. Dr. Samson received his PhD in Economics from Stanford University and a BA in Economic from Yale University.
Gina M. Samuels, PhD Associate Professor, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration Chicago, IL, USA Email: gmsamuels@uchicago.edu	Gina Miranda Samuels is an Associate Professor at the School of Social Service Administration and a Faculty Affiliate of the Center for the Study of Race, Politics and Culture. Her scholarly interests include transracial adoption, mixed race and multiethnic identity formation, interpretive research methods, and the development of relational, kinship, and cultural ties among young adults whose childhoods are shaped by foster care and adoption. Professor Samuels' scholarship situates these lived experiences in a broader socio-historical, cultural, and theoretical context to critically explore how personal identity and well-being are constrained and promoted by child welfare policy and practice and by societal and personal constructions of race and family. Professor Samuels received her MSW and PhD in Social Work and Social Welfare at the University of

	Wisconsin-Madison.
John Santelli, MD, MPH Harriet and Robert H. Heilbrunn Professor of Population and Family Health; Harriet and Robert H. Heilbrunn Professor of Pediatrics, College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, Mailman School of Public Health New York, NY USA Email: js2637@columbia.edu	John Santelli, is the Chair of the Heilbrunn Department of Population and Family Health at the Mailman School of Public Health at Columbia University. He has conducted research on HIV/STD risk behaviors, programs to prevent STD/HIV/unintended pregnancy among adolescents and women, school-based health centers, clinical preventive services, and research ethics. He has been a national leader and advocate in ensuring that adolescents are appropriately included in health research. Dr. Santelli holds a Masters of Public Health from Johns Hopkins and MD from Buffalo School of Medicine.
Elizabeth Sperber, MA, MPhil Columbia University Political Science Department, Research Associate, International Center for Child Health & Asset Development, New York, NY USA Email: ess2141@columbia.edu	Elizabeth Sperber is a PhD Candidate in Political Science and a Mellon Interdisciplinary Graduate Fellow at the Interdisciplinary Center for Innovative Theory and Empirics at Columbia University. Her research interests include religion and democratization in sub-Saharan Africa; the political economy of development; and applied social policy research. She has worked closely with Drs. Fred Ssewamala and Mary McKay on social policy research in Uganda, South Africa, and the urban U.S.
Fred Ssewamala, PhD Director, International Center for Child Health & Asset Development, New York, NY USA; Associate Professor, University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration, Chicago, IL USA Email: fmssewamala@uchicago.edu	Fred Ssewamala is an Associate Professor at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration and the Founding Director of the International Center for Child Health and Asset Development. His research focuses on social inclusion, asset-ownership development, financial capabilities, and creating life options through economic empowerment and innovative financial inclusion models for HIV/AIDS-affected orphaned and vulnerable children (OVC) and their caregiving families in sub-Saharan Africa. Professor Ssewamala is also currently researching the acceptability and feasibility of economic empowerment interventions in poor African immigrant communities in the urban U.S. He holds a PhD in Social Work and MSW from Washington University in St. Louis.
Lindsay Stark, PhD Assistant Professor, Program on Forced Migration and Health; Director, Child Protection in Crisis (CPC) Network, Columbia University New York, NY USA Email: ls2302@columbia.edu	Lindsay Stark is an Assistant Professor of Clinical Population and Family Health in Columbia University's Program on Forced Migration and Health. She has over a decade of experience leading applied research on protection of women and children in humanitarian settings. Dr. Stark's particular area of expertise is measuring sensitive and difficult-to-measure social phenomenon. Dr. Stark has led assessment and evaluation projects in Africa, Asia, and the Middle East. Dr. Stark currently serves as Principal Investigator and Executive Director of the Child Protection in Crisis (CPC) Learning Network, a consortium of agencies and academic institutions that work together on global learning associated with children in disaster and war settings. She holds a PhD in Public Health and MPH from Columbia University.

Julia Shu-Huah Wang, MS, MSW Doctoral Student Columbia University School of Social Work New York, NY USA Email: jw2674@columbia.edu	Julia Shu-Huah Wang is a Social Work Doctoral student at Columbia University, specializing in Social Policy and Policy Analysis. She is keenly interested in finding out how to best assist people in need in both the developed and developing worlds. Wang has assisted grassroots organizations in Uganda and Kenya to design community development projects and to evaluate program impact. In the field of social policy formulation and implementation. Wang received her MSW from Columbia University and a MS in Marriage and Family Services from University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.
Jason Wolfe Senior Household Economic Strengthening Advisor, U.S. Agency for International Development, Office of HIV/AIDS Washington DC, USA Email: jwolfe@usaid.gov	Jason Wolfe is Senior Household Economic Strengthening Advisor with USAID's Office of HIV/AIDS, where he supports PEPFAR country teams, projects, and partners to improve the economic circumstances of families affected by HIV and AIDS. Previously he served for five years with USAID's Microenterprise Development office promoting inclusive value chain development, managing the Enterprise Development Implementation Grant Program, contributing to knowledge management and collaborative learning efforts, and coordinating special initiatives with youth, HIV/AIDS-affected households, and conflict-affected environments.
Li Zou, MSW, MBA International Director, Center for Social Development (CSD), Washington University in St. Louis St. Louis, MO, USA Email: lzou@wustl.edu	Li Zou is the International Director at the Center for Social Development (CSD) at Washington University in St. Louis. She leads CSD's international asset-building work, and directs the five-year large-scale YouthSave Project in Colombia, Ghana, Kenya, and Nepal. She has contributed to CSD's consulting and research efforts on asset-building policy and children's savings accounts for governments in China, Hong Kong, Indonesia, and South Korea. Zou holds a MSW and a MBA from Washington University in St. Louis.